SEWAGE IS MAIN CITY PROBLEM

Civic Forces Discuss Propositions of Various Sorts

SUBJECT REVIEWED

Los Angeles Is Invited to Send Representatives to Next Meeting

Glendale's sewer question was the main topic of discussion and the main reason for the joint meetchamber of commerce and the reping of the Civics committee of the resentatives of the different improvement associations, held Tuesday night at the chamber of commerce.

The Civics committee included Dr. Jessie A. Russell, chairman; Lloyd Wilson, secretary; W. S. Rattray, Thomas D. Watson and Frank Parish. The Verdugo Woodlands Improvement association was represented by G. D. Mason and Mrs. Della Mae Butler.

Those representing the San Fernando Boulevard Improvement association were Roy Johnson, William Griffin, president, and Mrs. M. P. Moberly.

Foothill Improvement association representatives were E. H. Botsford, president, and Mr. Newby.

W. E. Hewitt was the invited speaker and he talked extensively of the sewer question.

In discussing the proposition it was brought out that the installation of a sewer system was not costly, but the upkeep is expensive. It was explained that the downtown system was a series of cesspools with about 17 concerns already hooked up. If laid out as a park, a sewer farm would not interfere with values of surrounding property.

Santa Ana has a sewer farm in actual operation, but it has not proved satisfactory, and they are now arranging to go to the ocean.

Glendale has been advised by Los Angeles officials that Glendale could connect up with the new Los Angeles outfall sewer, to be paid for according to assessed valuation without annexation. There will be a bond issue in Los Angeles on August 14 for the outfall sewer.

If Los Angeles put in a treatment plant, they could not take care of suburban towns. Los Angeles city owns all water in this watershed, and would stop any effort to build a sewer farm or treatment plant.

Experts claim that Glendale would require at least 200 acres for a sewer farm. Redlands claims that in her heavy dews, an odor does exist.

For a population of 30,000 people it would require 200 acres, and for 60,000 people, 400 acres would be needed, it was stated.

An outfall sewer seems to be the only feasible plan, as 240 to 300 acres could be procured only through condemnation proceedings, cost of grounds and plant being approximately $700,000.

A vote of appreciation was extended Mr. Hewitt, and a motion was made that representatives from both the city of Los Angeles and the county, be invited to the next meeting, which was accepted.

A committee on a name suggested the name Federated Civics Improvement associations. It was moved that the question of an appropriate name be postponed, and another motion to rescind it and that consideration be given, was made. More consideration was given and the name, "Federation of Improvement Associations of Glendale" was accepted.

A motion was made that three members of each organization be named, and if unable to attend, alternates are to be named by the president of each organization.

It was moved that all meetings be closed sessions, except to the press. A motion to adjourn was made by the chairman.

Class Government Not the Meaning of a Democracy

Democracy does not mean government by class, it means government for the benefit of everybody, says Dr. Frank Crane, in his articles on the editorial page this evening. Inasmuch as Dr. Crane discusses this subject in a very frank manner tonight, it is recommended that you turn to it and read it carefully.

James W. Foley strikes along the same trend of thought in his "Listening Post" this evening on "Statesmen." "We need men who belong to the state," asserts Mr. Foley, "men whose ideals are above petty trickery and trading and peanut politics."

Then in Henry James' column are rather concrete reasons why he favors Charles C. Moore over Senator Hiram Johnson.

There are able editorials, poetry, features by John Pilgrim, Della Stewart and Isabel M. Lewis, paragraphs, scientific facts and other appealing things set forth for your consideration. Turn to the editorial page this evening and you will be rewarded.

'MOTHER' SNYDER DEAR TO VETERANS PASSES ON

Totally Stricken Herself, Brightens the Days of Overseas Invalids

"Mother" Snyder has passed on to her reward. She has finished her course, and after her life, each moment of which was filled with some kindly word or golden deed, the much-loved lady of the veterans, passed on to the Home that awaited her.

Mrs. Clementine Snyder, more affectionately known as "Mother" at Sawtelle and Thornycroft, among the veterans, died at Thorncroft hospital on July 12 at the age of 61. For more than a year Mother Snyder had been staying at Thornycroft, and during that time she endeared herself to the many disabled boys, who up to a short time ago, were located at that institution. She was truly a mother to each one of these suffering lads. They went to her with their sorrows, and their joys. When they were in need of assistance in any way they hunted out Mother Snyder, who always proved herself the dearest kind of a friend. In this way this lady endeared herself to these fellows as only a person with a golden heart of love could. When these boys were ordered from Thornycroft, Mother Snyder remained there. The hardest thing connected with their leaving was their parting with "their dearest friend."

As the weeks and months wore away, the condition of Mother Snyder gradually became more critical. Gradually the cancer that was sapping her life, got the better of her, and on May 30th the physicians at the hospital decided to operate, this being the only way her life could possibly be prolonged. She lingered until July 12.

Funeral services over the body of Mother Snyder were held from the parlors of the Scovern Undertaking company, and interment was effected in Grand View cemetery, the official burial ground of the American Legion. At this service, six World war veterans, for whom Mrs. Snyder has done many deeds of kindness, acted as pallbearers. The Episcopal service was used.

The love that was held for Mother Snyder by her many friends was expressed in the wonderful array of floral pieces that were given by these friends. One of thesse was a large wreath sent by "her boys at Sawtelle," and another, "from her loving friends at Thornycroft," and another was from the American Legion of Glendale, of which her son is a member. A large wreath was presented by the American Steamship company, with which her son is connected. There were also many other beautiful floral tributes from others of her host of friends.

Mrs. Snyder is survived by her son, T. E. Mulligan, and one sister, Mrs. Ida Hearst of De Soto, Mo. Her brother-in-law, D. D. Mulligan of El Centro, attended the service and funeral.

Mother Snyder came from Missouri to California in 1897, living in Los Angeles for several years and afterwards moving to Arizona. She returned to California in 1912 and has resided here ever since.

MINERS ARE SOLIDLY IN FORMATION

So Reports John L. Lewis of United Mine Workers

DETERMINED TO WIN

Urges Joint Conference to Settle the Controversy

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The striking miners cannot be driven back to the mines, President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers warned today in an exclusive statement to the United Press, prompted by President Harding's plan to reopen the mines with troops protection.

Lewis then emphatically declared that the miners will settle the strike only by a joint conference with the operators, "regardless of what anybody thinks, says or does." Coal companies, he asserted, are now bent on destroying the unions.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The 680,000 coal miners of this country are more determined today to win their strike than they were on the day the strike started. Never before in the history of industry has there been such a demonstration of solidarity as is now witnessed in the ranks of the miners engaged in this struggle. Their determination and their perfect morale is the marvel of all time in industrial controversies. These men cannot be coerced into submission to terms and conditions that are repulsive to them. It is idle to talk about driving them back into the mines.

Coal companies, bent upon destroying the miners' union and starving the miners and their families into the acceptance of low wages and poverty living conditions, forced this strike upon the miners and the American people. We did everything humanly possible to avoid it. We repeatedly asked the operators to confer with us and agree upon a wage scale that could be worked out around the conference table, but they refused time and again. We are still ready and anxious to meet the operators in a joint conference for that purpose and we will meet with them at any time and place, just as we have done for the past 25 years.

There is but one way to settle this strike and that is by the joint conference method. And that is the way it is going to be settled, resays or does.

BOOTLEGGERS PAY $1500 FINE FOR WINE

San Fernando Road Stillers Pay $500 Fine Each

Louis Liccotti, Mike Macario and Secondo Teodo, who were arrested in a raid Monday, for selling wine in Glendale, were each fined $500, the limit possible under the offense, by Judge Lowe, when they appeared for sentence at 10 o'clock this morning. The fines were paid and the prisoners released.

The outfit that was maintained by these fellows, it is understood, will be dismantled, and the "wet goods" disposed of in the proper manner. In giving these fellows the limit in the way of fines, Judge Lowe said he was inclined to show no mercy to people who wilfully and unlawfully continue to make intoxicating liquors contrary to the laws of this country.

RUSH WORK ON CITY PARKS IS UNDER WAY

Verdugo and Patterson Are Scenes of Great Activity

Work is being rushed on both of Glendale's parks. Bright and early yesterday morning a crew of men was put in each park, with the result that since that time the dirt has been flying.

In the Verdugo Canyon park six men are working like beavers to get the park in presentable shape for the grand opening on August 16, when the city and the merchans will join hands in one grand celebration. Twelve 16-foot tables with benches on either side will be constructed in this park. Each of these will cost about $12, and it is expected that all of them will be ready for use in time for the picnic. Four large cobblestone stoves are to be constructed, these to be strictly modern in every way. The underbrush will be cleared away, the springs will be cemented and everything will be done to put this park in the finest possible shape.

In the Patterson avenue park a crew of men is busy clearing out the weeds, and preparing the park for opening at the time the swimming pool is finished. Notice has been served on the contractors who are erecting this pool, that this feature must be completed at once, or the city will take over the work and deduct the cost of this work from the contract price. The Richardson construction company, which has this contract, has already started active work and promises to rush the job to completion.

MINERS' LEADERS CHECK PRESIDENT

Plan to Open Union Mines Meets With Warning

WASHINGTON, July 19.—President Harding's plan to force increased coal production, despite the strike of 600,000 miners, by attempting to operate union mines with strikebreakers working under troops protection, received a sharp setback today.

Officials of the United Mine Workers served notice on government officials handling the coal tieup that any attempt to send strikebreakers to the closed shop mines will result in a strike of the union engineers, pumpmen and other workers now working to prevent the mines from filling with water and otherwise deteriorating.

Assurance that they would use all the powers of their states in giving protection to mine operators in reopening the mines in compliance with President Harding's request were received from six governors at an early hour at the White House today.

These responses were from Governor Morrow of Kentucky; Kendall, Iowa; McCray, Indiana; Hardwick, Georgia; Hart, Washington, and Mechem of New Mexico.

Other answers are expected at the White House hourly.

The government today embarked on a momentous test of strength with the 600,000 striking coal miners.

In directing the governors of the 28 coal-producing states to protect the mines of all operators willing to resume coal production, President Harding has thrown down the gage of battle to the United Mine Workers of America, probably the most powerful single body of organized workers in the country.

Should the president's plan fail to bring about a large increase in coal production within a short time, there will be but one course open to the government—seziure and operation of the mines.

In his call upon the 28 governors, Harding has in effect ordered the mobilization of more than 1,000,000 armed men on the side of the public, it was estimated. First of all, the governors can call on the local authorities, such as police and deputy sheriffs, to provide protection.

If these forces prove insufficient, the national guard forces are to be mobilized. If the guardsmen prove ineffective, federal troops will be sent to their assistance. Should the trouble be too widespread for control of these forces the government will induct the naitonal guards of non-coal-producing states into the federal service and detail them to duty in the coal-producing states.

GRANT'S PASS AND NEEDLES LISTEN TO GLENDALE

Press-Newton Programs Advertise the City Widely

That the Press-Newton station is advertising Glendale over the widest possible range, is evidenced in telegrams and letters received by the Glendale Daily Press radio department. These telegrams are self-explanatory.

"Received your broadcasting last night," says C. I. Hobart of Grant's Pass, 910 miles airline from Glendale, "and I was using a detector tube only. This is my record for broadcast, although I hear Catalina nicely."

"Radio editor," says Donald McQuaid of Vacaville, 516 miles away, "your broadcasting received very clearly and louder than any other distant station so far heard. Please answer and I'll listen for you on your regular schedule if you mail me a copy of your schedule. Voice is very clear cut and the music is lovely."

E. L. Forsyth, of Needles, on the airline 150 miles away, writes: "I want to tell you of the splendid concert we picked up last night. We were trying to tune in the Avalon phone and in so doing we picked up your station and for fifteen minutes we listened to as pretty Hawaiian music as ever heard. Every note was as perfect and could hear all of the string vibrations as if we were standing next to the artists themselves. How many fifty watt tubes do you use? When do you broadcast again and on what wave?

"Static is awful bad on the dessert but usually lets up about 10 p. m. I use a Grebe CR-9 receiver, which has two stages of amplification. My antenna is two wires 175 feet between poles and 50 feet high. The wires are ten feet apart. They say that my antenna is too long, a total of 225 feet to the instruments, but I get splendid results from it. One pole is 70 feet high and the other 50 feet.

"Again thanking you for your splendid concert, I remain."

NORTHWEST TRAIN SERVICE IMPAIRED

SEATTLE, July 19.—Immediate discontinuance of 24 trains west of Paradise, Mont., was announced today by the Northern Pacific railway. The action, it was said, was a direct result of the shopmen's strike, it being impossible to maintain a full schedule without repairs.

It was also announced that freight service will be materially abbreviated on account of the strike, movements being limited to only the most highly perishable.

RAILWAY TRAINMEN TO HAUL COAL

CLEVELAND, July 19.—Coal produced by non-unon miners under President Harding's plan, will be handled by members of the big railroad brotherhoods without protest, officials of the brotherhoods said here today. W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, said: "It was foolist to assume that the brotherhood members would protest the handling of non-union coal."

The building is complete in every detail, and will doubtless be a credit to Glendale when finished.

Congressman A. W. Jefferis, his nearest opponent on the other hand made his fight on his record in congress under the Harding administration.

THAT it requires great mental and physical effort of every citizen to make your city climb the ladder of fame.

THAT the time will come when all knockers will be forced to leave your city and their places will be filled by men who will be CITY BOOSTERS and CITY BUILDERS.

PRESBYTERIAN WOMEN HOLD MEETING

Regular Monthly All-Day Session Is Held At Woodlands

Members of the women's societies of the Glendale Presbyterian church, who met for their regular monthly add-day session Tuesday, had a great treat in that their meeting was held in the beautiful picnic grounds and pavilion of the Newport company in Verdugo Woodlands. About 75 were present to enjoy a great variety of sandwiches, cakes, pies and everything calculated to make a delicious picnic lunch. Coffee was served free by the Newport company and it was delicious.

The luncheon was served under the chairmanship of Mesdames Eiler and Hesse of circle 10. Mrs. W. J. Smith presided over the missionary program which followed the luncheon.

Mrs. R. W. Mottern made a most interesting talk on the Mary Holmes seminary in Mississippi, and read some entertaining letters from girls who have been graduated from the seminary, telling of the fine positions they are holding and the good work they are doing.

Mrs. Mottern also spoke of the Spanish-American missionary work that is being done in the Rocky mountains and of the Piney Woods seminary near Broxton, Miss., founded by Prof. Lawrence Jones. He is called the Booker T. Washington of Mississippi, and every kind of a trade is taught in the institution.

Mrs. Frye read many interesting articles on women's work in missions.

After singing a song and repeating the Mizpah benediction, the ladies departed for their homes, feeling they had spent an enjoyable and profitable day.

GLENDALE PICNIC TO BE DISCUSSED

Trustees of the Glendale Credit Men's Association and the city are meeting today at luncheon at the Broadway Inn, to discuss plans for the Glendale picnic to be held under the auspices of the association, Wednesday, August 16.

It seems to be definitely settled that it will be held in the new city park. While a big all-day program will provide plenty of entertainment, the big attraction after all will be the parksite. It can hardly be called a park yet, because it is so new, but time will remedy that. The credit men and the city officials are anxious to have the public see this civic asset and are making plans for the entertainment of thousands of Glendalians, who will be fed at a barbecue dinner, and given a program of athletic sports for which prizes will be provided, and there will be diversions in the way of dancing, croquet, archery, etc. Many will want to make hikes to the spring and to the ridge, where a fine auto road may some day provide a scenic drive for Glendale and its neighbor, Flintridge.

R. JONES OPENS LOCAL CAMPAIGN

kes First Speech at Picnic of Business Women's Club

he Glendale Business and Pro- ional Women's club had the r Tuesday night of being the organization in Glendale to ddressed by Mattison B. Jones his city, since he consented run as democratic candidate the governorship of the state. is speech was received with e attention and warmly appre- d, both for the kind things said of the club and for his wed platform of economy in state administration and de- votion to the best interests of the commonwealth of California. It followed a weinie roast and picnic supper in the Newport grove and pavilion in Verdugo Woodlands, which proved as delightful as other picnics there have done. The speaker was accompanied by his daughter and by Mrs. Jones, who has shown herself the good friend of the club.

As a preface to the political part of his speech, Mr. Jones spoke of his pleasure in attending the club banquet last fall and his warm interest in the activities of the organization which he grouped under the general term, "service." Said he: "I congratulate the city of Glendale on the existence of a club of this character, where the young woman, employed, who perhaps is a stranger, can go for rest and for lunch and feel the arm of companionship. How much better is that for the new girl than to go to a restaurant, where she does not know a soul."

"I entered this race," he said, speaking of his candidacy, "at the solicitation of party leaders and did so reluctantly because my home life and my church life are very precious to me, and I knew it would mean great sacrifice of those interests. But now that I am in the campaign, I am in it to the end and in it to win if possible.

"My reluctance to enter the campaign was not because I do not consider the office a great honor. To be governor of nearly four millions of Californians and thorough Americans, would be an honor of which any man in the world could be justly proud. That is why I appreciate very much indeed the fact that the Democratic club of Glendale was the first body to suggest my name for this position at a meeting at which I was not present. When the Democratic Club of Southern California met in my absence and unanimously voted to ask me to make the race, it was weeks before I could bring myself to consent. If I did not believe there was opportunity for me to serve you and the other people of California, I would not for any consideration go through the strain of the primary canvass and the later campaign for the place at Sacramento.

"The present governor of California may be the Republican nominee. Today I met his opponent, Friend W. Richardson, a splendid looking man. Governor Stephens has been my personal friend for many years. Years ago I had the privilege of being a lecturer in the College of Law in Los Angeles, and the then Congressman Stephens sat under my lectures on advocacy. I appreciate his friendship, but my own ideas on some things differ from those of Governor Stephens. I hope to present to the people of the state a constructive program. If they prefer some other kind of a program, let them speak at the polls and all will be well.

"The thing I want to emphasize is economy. I know that progress makes its demands upon our pocketbooks in the improvements in our cities and in our civic life, but there is a limit beyond which I do not believe the people of the state should be called upon to contribute.

"You probably recall very well the old Southern Pacific political machine. The time was when the Southern Pacific railroad of this state literally, through its money, owned the politics of the state. The Southern Pacific machine ran the government of the state for $22,000,000, that being the biennial budget for the two years. That was in 1909-10. In 1915 the budget for the two years was $35,000,000; in 1917 it was $47,000,000; in 1919 it was $52,000,000, and in 1921 it had risen to $91,000,000, or an increase of $39,000,000 that the people were called upon to pay in two years more than they did the preceding two years. What made all of that possible? Part of it was increased school money. Reasonable expenditures for education I approve with all my soul, but that was only a part of the increase.

"The $39,000,000 means a 75 percent increase in the budget at one leap. If the present administration is returned to power and if we may assume that administration will do in future what it has done in the past, the next 75 percent increase will mean $159,000,000. If there is the same increase for the second two years, the budget will be $278,000,000. I ask the people of California, when is this thing going to stop? I ask you people. I believe there should be more economy and greater efficiency in the management of the affairs of this state.

"I believe the governorship should not be a political office in the usual sense. It should be the office of general business manager of four millions of people with "economy" and "efficiency" as its slogans.

"Governor Stephens has a marvelous machine. There are 12,000 employes and 40 fat commissions in the state government. It has become a great power.

"My policy is to take the office out of politics and put it on a scientific business basis. I believe that every state government, like the city government of Glendale, should be run not for the sake of keeping any man in office, but for the welfare of the people who created the office.

"If the people of California want greater efficiency in government and fewer commissions, I promise to use my utmost endeavor to that end.

"I spoke of the forty fat commissions. One of these is the railroad commission. I am firmly convinced that the railroad commission, when first organized, was absolutely responsible and subservient to the wishes of the people of the state, but I am equally convinced that the present state railroad commission is not subservient to the will of the people, but subservient to the railroad and telephone companies of this state. Three or four years ago we were paying only 7½c or 8c a trip for transportation, a distance of 8 miles to the heart of Los Angeles. Now we are compelled to pay for fare one way, 23c, and for the round trip, 38c. The Los Angeles Railroad company carries passengers more than 8 miles for 5 cents, yet the Pacific Electric can go before this railroad commission at any time and it will put across in one form or another any program the railroad presents.

"It is the same with the telephone company. Think of the people of Glendale being compelled to pay a toll of 10 cents on service to Los Angeles, merely because they have chosen to remain outside the municipal limits of Los Angeles, when there are residents more than 8 miles distant who pay no tolls. The people are going to let the railroad commission know this fall that they resent being forced to pay undue prices for the service they receive.

"I am committed to this proposition. If the people want me to serve them in Sacramento, the railroad commission will learn that when I name them they must serve the interests of the people instead of the corporate interests of California. If you do not like that program, when you go into the booth, vote for some other candidate."

That Mr. Jones had struck a popular chord was evident from the applause which interrupted his speech at times and which followed its conclusion when he and Mrs. Jones received the greetings of members.

Not as many women are jealous of the poor boobs they call husbands as, for the sake of keeping them paying the bills, they pretend to be.

M'KEON CANNING COMPANY OPENS FOR BUSINESS

New Firm Now Running Capacity With Good Prospects

F. M. McKeon, formerly in the canning business in Burbank, has just opened his own factory at 1625 San Fernando road, Los Angeles, his place now being in full operation. This establishment is conducted under the name of McKeon Canning company, Inc., and 200 people are employed at this time. This cannery is one of the most up-to-date in equipment of any similar institution in this section of the country, and the goods that are being shipped are going out under the label of the McKeon quality products.

Every department in this cannery is sanitary in the extreme. Since the place was opened not a minute has been lost in bringing the establishment to the highest state of efficiency. Apricots are being canned at this time, and these are going out under the Cherish, Ulscer, Thrill and Permission brands.

The McKeon Canning company consists of F. M. McKeon, president; G. M. Stone, vice-president; H. B. Colburn, secretary and treasurer, and T. L. Graves.

It was through the efforts of A. W. Beach of Glendale, one of the leading brokers of Los Angeles, that the incorporation of this firm was made possible. At the present time this factory is running to full capacity, and will run the entire year. Every employe is experienced and no minors are employed. A majority of the people employed in this factory are from Glendale and Burbank.

CARNATION LODGE INSTALLS OFFICERS

The installation of officers of the Carnation Rebekah lodge took place Tuesday night at a meeting held in Odd Fellows hall. The work was put on by the district deputy president, Mrs. Lydia Hadley, of Trinity lodge, Los Angeles. She was accompanied by her marshal and 16 installing officers.

The officers installed last night were: Mrs. Lydia LeForce, acting past grand; Mrs. Elsie Stevens, noble grand; Mrs. Moretta Schwitters, vice grand. The appointed officers installed were: Mrs. Rosella Strothers, right support to noble grand; Mrs. Eleanor P. Zerr, left support to noble grand; Mrs. Evelyn Hall, right support to vice grand; Miss Hazel Linkogel, left support to vice grand; Mrs. Ida Smith, chaplain; Max Jergensen, inside guardian, and H. Frost, outside guardian.

Several visitors were present, including Mrs. May Adams, noble grand of East Gate lodge, Los Angeles, Mrs. Daisy Richardson, from Fraternity lodge, and several delegates from Van Nuys.

Following the installation, Mrs. Rosella Strothers, the retiring acting past grand, presented Mrs. Ludia LeForce, acting past grand, with a beautiful past grand jewel, a gift from the lodge.

The district deputy president and her marshal were each presented with a large bouquet of sweet peas and maidenhair fern. The incoming noble grand and vice grand gave the unwritten work in open lodge.

Three applicants were elected to membership—Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Albright of 118 West Acacia avenue and Mrs. Cardie H. Brockway of 313 South Central avenue.

At the next meeting, eight candidates will be initiated, and four have been elected to membership by transfer. They are Mrs. Madge Maddox, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Kaiser and Miss E. Bernice Kaiser, of 1332 East Harvard street. The Van Nuys team has been invited to confer the degree at the initiation.

Following this interesting work, a banquet was served to about 100.

MISS ELLIOTT IS DAINTY HOSTESS

The Intermediate Christian Endeavor society was entertained last night by Miss Mildred Elliott, at her home, 408 West Ivy street. The rooms were beautifully decorated with the Endeavor's colors, purple and gold.

After a short business session the rest of the evening was devoted to contests and games, which were greatly enjoyed by all present. Later in the evening a delicious course of ice cream and cake was served by the hostess.

Those present were Inez Harrison, Gertrude Heidman, Louise Holt, Louise Dougherty, Mildred Sooy, Harold Parker, Gerald Parker, John Simpson, Graham Henning, Percy Jewell, Paul Edmonds, Margaret Jones, James Littell, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Brown, and the hostess, Miss Mildred Elliott, and her mother, Mrs. J. O. Elliott.

W. P. Clover, 349 Patterson avenue, is off with his wife and elder son, Eugene, for his two weeks' vacation at Pine Cliff, Little Bear lake. During his absence Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Clover, 947 North Louise street, father and mother of Mr. Clover, are caring for his two younger children.

EASTERN STARS HAVE LUNCHEON

Mrs. Mary Scarborough, of Pittsburgh, Pa., past worthy matron of the Eastern Star, who is visiting her son in Boyle Heights, gave a luncheon yesterday at the Broadway tea room, Los Angeles, for eleven members of the lodge, all of whom belonged to Mizpah chapter at their home in the east. The color scheme followed was red and white, which was carried out by the dark red dahlias on the table and the red and white place cards.

Guests who enjoyed the affair included Mrs. John Galer and Miss Ellisa Warfield, both of Glendale; Mrs. O. S. Baughman, Mrs. Charles Graham, Mrs. John Roberts, Mrs. Elizabeth Jones, Mrs. Edwin Scarborough and little Jane Scarborough, daughter-in-law and granddaughter, respectively, of the hostess, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Undercoffer, the former being a past patron of the Eastern Star; Mr. Edwin Scarborough, also formerly connected with the lodge in the same capacity, and the hostess, Mrs. Mary Scarborough.

PHELON FAMILY AT BIG BEAR LAKE

W. R. Phelon and family are spending their vacation at Big Bear lake, and are having a royal time. But the most important part of the story is the silhouette of one of the many fish Mr. Phelon says he has caught, which he sent to the local gas office yesterday. According to Mr. Phelon, it weighed nine pounds, measured 26½ inches from tip to tip, and, judging from its shape, was a "young whtale," or something of the sort, for Phelon forgot to name it. Anyway, the genial manager of the gas company says he caught the aforesaid fish, and no one doubts his story.

A professor had been lecturing and as he left the classroom he found that one of the students had dropped into his hat a card upon which was drawn the picture of a donkey. He said nothing at the time, but the next day, when he stood before the class, he prefaced his lecture with the remark:

"Gentlemen, I have to thank one of your number for placing his card in my hat. He was to modest to leave his name, but his portrait was excellent."

PERFORMANCE PROVES SAVAGE TIRES Are BUILT TO EXCEL

IN DALLAS, TEXAS

Little Heap, trade character of The Spreckels "Savage" Tire Company, has an offering of peace for the citizens of Dallas. The big building is the Magnolia Oil Company's structure---it is one of the tallest buildings in the West.

This series depicts the performance of Savage Tires in different localities. We do not cite, or endeavor to show, isolated cases of exceptional performance—almost any tire company can do that. We have endeavored, rather, to reflect a true condition, showing the very consistent and general satisfaction Savage Tires are giving under every type of service in each section of the country in which they are operating.

Local road conditions render severe tests to tires operating in territories tributary to Dallas. This is especially true of tires in commercial service and in the oil fields where "tests" are made, more often than not, with no intention of making them as such. The "test" is in reality a part of the service tires must undergo in the course of regular duties performed.

Selected from our general office files of certified records showing the remarkably consistent service Savage Tires are giving in this and other territories, we find the following:

Unusual Service

Running a tire flat is considered the extreme of hard usage and abuse and generally necessitates an investment in a new tire. This is true in Dallas as well as anywhere else—and yet a local user tested the construction of the Savage Cord in this manner for a distance of fifty miles.

After this unusually severe test a critical inspection of the casing revealed a perfect bond between plies without a single loose cord. We attribute this in part to the seventeen constructional features we have put into the Savage Cord to make it the remarkable tire it is. Other tires "tested" in the same manner proved unfit for service.

Rough Usage

A service car owner and driver known as "the hardest driver in the Panhandle," from previous experience with many makes of tires, certifies to getting value received if his tires last 5000 miles. At this writing Savage Cords have increased that mileage by more than 100% and are still in operation with the appearance of being less than half worn.

In the Oil Fields

Operating on the gas lines and highways under heavily loaded cars hauling material to and from the oil fields, for a mileage of 17,500 miles, Savage tires have given greater service to certain operators in Northwestern Texas than any other make of tire used—and they claim to have tried them all.

In Taxicab Service

On a fleet of cars in this territory, undergoing the severest type of city, passenger service, Savage Cords are averaging better than 10,000 miles of highly satisfactory service. In comparison with the mileage previously secured from other tires this performance is justly considered remarkable.

¶ Almost any tire will give satisfactory service under ideal conditions. Some makes will even render satisfactory service under certain adverse conditions. Certain makes of tires will perform best on long drives over pavements, other makes will show to better advantage on dirt highways—and so it goes.

¶ Our object has been to build Savage Tires to perform equally well under every condition—on the short haul of the heavily ladened commercial car, on the heated roads of the sandy desert, over mud and stones of the land of forests or the broad dirt highways of the plains.

¶ That we have accomplished our purpose is evident from the results users of Savage Tires are getting—everywhere.

Truths in Epigram

For truth itself has not the privilege to be spoken at all times and in all sorts. — Montaigne (1533-1592).

One ought to seek out virtue for its own sake, without being influenced by fear or hope, or by any external influence. Moreover, that in that does happiness consist.— Diogenes (200 A. D.).

ALONG THE COAST

Funds are ready for construction of a state highway from Huntington Beach to Long Beach. This will be particularly good news not only to the persons directly benefited. Indirectly, the benefit is to the whole state. The new line will be a link in a highway ultimately stretching from the Malibu on past Santa Monica to San Diego. A road along such a sweep of shore would be the most picturesque in the world. It would be an added attraction to a region already known as the peoples' playground, and already unexampled in the multitude and variety of its scenic allurements.

The roads of California constitute an important factor of its assets. They serve more than the purpose of the tourist, for they have become a distinct agency in the promotion of business. They offer a way to the pleasure seeker, but they also join the producer to the market. They make accessible many fertile areas that in the absence of transportation facilities could not be utilized. They serve the common interests of the mountaineer and the dweller by the sea.

Building roads has cost California much money, all well invested. It has cost far less than would a similar mileage constructed under county supervision. The results of the system in vogue have been more uniform than had the several counties attended to the matter in a necessarily patchwork fashion. Of course there has been protest at the expenditure, as always is to be expected. The charge of extravagance has been made against the administration, the accusation being designed as a political coup, but being in reality an inevitable but ineffective campaign trick.

HELPING RUSSIA

A pro-bolshevist paper calls attention to the fact that Russia has in secret underground chambers jewels worth the ransom of a dozen kings. It cites in conjunction with this, the even more impressive fact that "tens of millions of Russian citizens are slowly starving to death." Then it adds: "Nothing but their own work will save them." Through this it reaches the conclusion: "The verdict of history will fall heavy upon our business leaders and our political leaders if they withhold their helping hands from the new Russia struggling to learn how to live."

It would have been impossible to compress more sophistry into equal space. The Russian citizens mentioned are the serfs and subjects of an oligarchy that has the brutality without the brains of the old regime. They have ceased to work because their masters caused work to be without reward. They are starving because the land is untilled and the factory idle, as the transportation system rots. These conditions have been created by the bolshevists, and have come about as inevitably as though the result of deliberate plot. Meanwhile the vast bolshevist army is fed. There still is available enough loot to keep it going. And the charity of the hated American strives to put bread in the mouths of the Russian children.

The oligarchy there has announced itself as the foe of all government such as prevails throughout civilization. It has planned an international government to rule the world from Moscow; a government by the fanatic clique that has achieved nothing but ghastly and tragic failure; that has put up bars against all friendly overture, sneered at the rules of honor, at the sanctity of all pledges, and heralded the coming of a bloody revolution to reduce all peoples to the chaos and desolation in which Russia lies prone.

The "new Russia" is not struggling to learn how to live. It is making of itself an example of how not to live. Truly it must be saved, if saved at all, by the work of its own hands, since it renders impossible any prospect of succor from without, except as represented in inadequate alms.

VALUE OF WORK

President Vauclain of the Baldwin Locomotive works said recently that big constructive work was worth reading about because it was worth doing. "Anybody can commit a murder," he observed, the implication being that it was not everybody who could build a locomotive. Mr. Vauclain has worked from boyhood, and reaching 67 is still at it. He puts in long and strenuous hours, and, thriving on the experience, counsels other people to do likewise. It is his theory that the man who fancies himself old and begins to rest meets the fate of the locomotive left behind the roundhouse for a few weeks. It gets so rusty and decrepit that it might as well be scrapped.

There could be no doubt but that the advice of the builder is most excellent so far as it pertains to others similarly constituted mentally and physically. He says that time devoted to reading is wasted. Therefore he has done little reading. As a consequence that is not perceptible to himself, he has missed one of the pleasures of living. He has missed contact with the greatest minds. He has ignored the fact that the acquisition of purely cultural knowledge is as important as the ability to erect a locomotive. A world devoted to the grind of shop and office, offering to the intelligence no attraction outside this routine, would be a dreary place, not to the comparatively few Vauclains, but to humanity in general.

To take delight in work is good. It accelerates the accomplishment of the task and betters the quality of the product. But to many people, work represents a means to an end, and is not in itself a triumphant climax to endeavor.

SUPPORT OF MOORE

The outstanding appeal for support of Charles C. Moore for the nomination of United States senator lies in the fact that President Harding has earned the right to expect the republicans to support him fully. They have the opportunity to do so. Failure to respond would mean throwing support to influences that have done their utmost to thwart the executive purpose. Mr. Moore is openly in favor of disarmament, and thus of the four power treaty. He cannot be imagined as occupying the place of senator from California and there acting upon the orders of an alien and hostile political interest. His views, as often expressed by him as a private citizen, coincide with those of President Harding. They are precisely the views assailed by the very element that professed loyalty to the President while doing its worst to discredit his policies, humiliate his administration, and give aid and comfort to the proponents of war as against peace.

Government by Class

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The enemies of democracy are legion.

Democracy means life. And all life is continually threatened by microbes. All life is a struggle.

DR. FRANK CRANE

One of the subtlest enemies of democracy is government by class. Government by any class negatives democracy and destroys it, and it makes no difference whether the class is composed of czars and grand dukes or is composed of bolsheviks and plumbers.

The seed of error is in half understanding what democracy means. It does not mean government for the benefit of the poor man, or of the laborer. It means government for the benefit of everybody. And the college professor and banker have just as much rights under a true democracy as a bricklayer or a coal heaver.

It is in connection with this that we see the danger that lies in labor unions, and in the whole so-called labor movement. That danger consists in the fact that laborers are encouraged to think of themselves as a class whose only hope of getting their share of the good things of the world lies in fighting other classes.

The class spirit in any way, shape or form is an enemy of democracy, for the only true spirit in democracy is enthusiasm for the common good.

Classes, as well as politial parties, are symptoms of the childishness and immaturity of the world, of the inability of men to think of themselves as human beings.

Government by rich men or government by heredity nobles is, of course, unwarranted tyranny. We have all got that far in the world's lesson book. But it is time that we should go on to the next chapter and learn that government by coal miners or steel workers is tyranny just as bad. You have only to carry out the aim of the average labor union to its logical conclusion to see that it would result in the cancellation of all human progress. For that logical conclusion is such a state of affairs as we have in Russia, where the country is run for the benefit of what is called the proletariat.

The end is stagnation, famine and collapse.

The fact is that, important as the proletariat may be, and great as may be the rights of the handworkers and wage-earners, they are by no means the only pebbles on the beach. They absolutely need the assistance of the other classes of society to ensure any kind of prosperity.

Since the world began the curse of the human race has been its tendency to coagulate, to form in thick lumps.

The cause of this has been that men are not able to grasp so profound an ethical principle as the good of humainty when all their little minds can see is the necessity of working for the good of the cotton spinners and building up a protective tariff, or working for the good of the steel puddlers and organizing a strike, or working for the good of the republican party and wrecking a world to secure offices, or the good of the Baptist church, not for the benefit of the world of lost sinners, but for the sake of beating the Methodists across the way.

All this may be human nature. But it is human nature as measles or tuberculosis is human nature; it is something to be got rid of and grown out of.

QUERIES

(Find the error in this article.)

J. Murphy: "The writer is much interested in 'The Right Word' section of your paper. Would you mind restating the pronunciation of the word incredulous? In your column on June 14 you—or the printer—give (or gives) it as incred-ju-lous; that is to say, the syllable du becomes ju. I am aware that among southerners, east-siders, and many other people this pronunciation obtains; but it is usually regarded as degenerate pronunciation. Similarly we hear Chewsday for Tuesday, jewty for duty, e-jew-cation for education, jew for due, immejet for immediate. I hardly think any cultivated speaker could be guilty of such monstrous pronunciation, and for this reason I feel that the printer made the error. Still, I should be glad to have you comment, and I beg to thank you in advance." Answer: First, "The Right Word" never has, and never will, give such slovenly pronunciations as Chewsday, jewty, jew, and immejet. Secondly, let us pause to consider the pronunciations of incredulous and education. In the pronunciation section of the introductory pages of Webster's "New International" the following can be found: "A preceding t (when the t precedes u as in unite) is more or less palatized in ordinary speech by the i or y element of the u, the two together forming a more or less clear ch sound; as in nature(picture, natural, etc. A preceding d is in the same manner commonly palatized into the sound of j; as in verdure, gradual, etc." The New International, Century and Standard do not vary from the foregoing explanation.

Yesterday's Error

"John and myself will be present."
The right word is I.

Vocabulary

"Some of the spectral appearances which he had heard told of in a winter's evening."—Scott.

"Having the character of a spectre or phantom. Resembling, looking like, suggestive of, a spectre or spectres. Characteristic of, appropriate to, a spectre."—Oxford.

Pronunciation: spek' tral (e as in get; a as o in winsome).—Oxford, Standard, Webster and Century.

For observation: specter (noun); spectorology (noun).

Origin: spectrum (Latin)—a vision.

THE LISTENING POST

When we analyze and dissect and take apart our homely old Anglo-Saxon words, we are likely to learn something.

Of their significance.

Because they are pretty plain and blunt words.

Telling when they came.
How they came to be.
What they mean.

We like them better than words that are merely mellifluous.

Arbitrary.
Without significance of themselves.
Except such significance as we choose to attach.

A good many of us merely mouth words and accept them.
We found them in the books.
Or we heard them in conversation.
And repeated them parrot like.
Without analysis.
Dissection.
We merely took them for granted.

A lot of our words do not need definition.
They define themselves.
If we think.
Instead merely of accepting.
But there is not too much thinking done today.
The disposition is to shut the eyes of the mind and swallow.

There is one word we use a lot in affairs of government.
In affairs of the world.
In affairs having to do with the public weal.
The word STATESMEN.

And it is a good word, having a distinct meaning.

Possibly you have never analyzed it.
Taken it apart and looked at it.
You have used it as meaning some distinguished diplomat.
Wearing a silk hat and long coat.
Somebody who is elected to an office of national significance.

But when we analyze the word we find that a statesman is a STATE'S Man.
That is surely an enviable thing to be.
A man who belongs to the state.
Whose services are ours.
The possession of the whole nation.

Who labors not for any part of us.
But for all of us.
Whose desire is to serve us as a nation.
Who cannot be bribed by any part of us against any other part.
Who cannot be swayed from his duty to all of us.
Who is the MAN OF THE STATE.

We use the word statesman glibly.
Unthinkingly.
Without comprehending just what it signifies.
But it means just what it says.
A man who is first, last and forever loyal to the state.
And the state is all of us.

We need statesmen.
Men who belong to the state.
Whose ideals are above petty trickery and trading and peanut politics.
Men who are really the STATE'S MEN.

JAMES W. FOLEY.

SONGS OF THE POETS

A Rose—By Sir Richard Fanshawe (1608-1666)

Blown in the morning, thou shalt fade ere noon.
What boots a life which in such haste forsakes thee?
Thou'rt wondrous frolic, being to die so soon,
And passing proud a little color makes thee.
If thee thy brittle beauty so deceives,
Know then the thing that swells thee is thy bane;
For the same beauty doth, in bloody leaves,
The sentence of thy early death contain.
Some clown's coarse lungs will poison thy sweet flower,
If by the careless plough thy shalt be torn;
And many Herods lie in wait each hour
To murder thee as soon as thou art born—
Nay, force thy bud to blow—their tyrant breath
Anticipating life, to hasten death!

The Brightest Star in the Northern Hemisphere

By ISABEL M. Lewis, United States Naval Observatory

A little to the east of the meridian in the early evening hours of July one may see the magnificent sapphire - hued Vega, whose name is derived from the Arabic for "falling eagle." It is in the constellation of Lyra, the brightest star north of the celestial equator. Vega is exactly equal in brightness to Alpha Centauri which is invisible in our latitudes and next to Sirius and Canopus these two stars are the brightest stars in the heavens.

Vega is a star of unusual interest for several reasons in addition to its being of exceptional brightness. It lies close to the "Apex of the Sun's Way," which is the point in the heavens toward which the solar system is moving. It is also one of the nearest stars in the heavens. The most reliable determinations of its parallax indicate that its light takes only about 38 years to travel to the earth. The only bright stars that lie nearer to us than Vera are Alpha Centauri, Sirius, Procyon, Altair and Fomalhaut at distances of 4, 3, 8, 7, 1, 15 and 23 light years, respectively.

The procession of the equinoxes which causes the pole of the equator to describe a circle of 23½ degrees radius about the pole of the ecliptic in a period of about 25,800 years will bring Vega close to the north pole of the heavens about 12,000 years from now when it will be a most magnificent pole-star.

The position of Vega in the heavens is such that it is carried by its diurnal motion nearly through the zenith of Washington and all places in the same latitude. As it transits the meridian, then, it passes almost directly overhead for those who live close to the thirty-ninth parallel of latitude.

Vega is one of the most easily recognized stars in the heavens not only because of its superior brilliancy and distinctive bluish color, but also because it is closely followed on the east by two small stars of the forth magnitude which form with it a small equilateral triangle with sides about two degreees in extent. The northern of these two stars is a quadruple of double-double star known as Epsilon Lyrae which a sharp eye can split into two stars without telescopic aid. A small telescope shows that each of these two stars is also double. The four stars form a connected system in which the two close pairs revolve about a common center of gravity of themselves with the more distant pair. Vega also has a small faint companion which is not physically connected with it but chances to lie nearly in the same line of sight. Such a pair is called an optically connected double. That the two stars do not form a connected system is shown by the fact that they are not moving in the same direction through space. In actual distance one is probably many light years beyond the other.

Though exact measurements of brightness show that Vega is the brightest star of the northern hemisphere it is very closely rivalled by Capella, the golden-hued star in Auriga, now invisible in the evening, and by the orange-colored Arcturus in Bootes which may now be seen a little to the west of the meridian. Capella and Arcturus are exactly equal in brightness and are only one-tenth of a magnitude fainter than Vega.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

GOES A STEP TOO FAR

[Worcester Telegram]

England and America are playing a great game just now. Prominent Englishmen visit America and prominent Americans visit England, and they all talk about how to improve Anglo-American relations. If there is a shortage of the right kind of arrivals in either London or New York, Englishmen in England or Americans in America help fill in. There are all kinds of theories presented, and everyone who speaks gives the impression of finally reaching a solution.

Dean Inge of London specializes in frankness. Englishmen need the friendship of Americans much more than "they need ours," he says. That sounds sensible. Englishmen have to thank Americans for "that marvelous unprotected frontier of nearly 4000 miles between Canada and the United States." That sounds sensible, too. "The United States must be the largest and the most powerful of the English-speaking countries," he admits. We wouldn't dispute that.

But, says Dean Inge, Americans "care more what we think of them than we care what they think of us."

That kind of frankness doesn't appeal to us at all. It makes us want to celebrate the Fourth of July with renewed fury.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

This column is written generally without introducing the topic of politics.

The candidacy of Charles C. Moore for the republican nomination to the senate is so important as to sweep away the usual inhibition.

HENRY JAMES

There is a side to the matter that many editors seem to touch upon with needless delicacy. This is the circumstance that Senator Johnson does not represent the republicans of California, or represent California at all. He represents Hearst, who is neither a Californian nor a republican. At intervals convenient to himself Hearst plays that he is a democrat, but he is not. He is alien to the principles of any party, unless he is seeking something from that party. In a partisan sense he is constitutionally a malcontent and a renegade.

On many public questions Johnson voted as though taking orders directly from Hearst. Californians objected. They had not hired Johnson to do leg work for Hearst or even to render him lip service. They did not enjoy seeing him perform dirty jobs for Tammany. They resented his attitude on the four-power pact, for it was the attitude of his employer Hearst, and directly opposed to their own.

So it is most fortunate that a man of the character of Moore has consented to enter the field. He not only lives here but his undivided interests are here. He is an honorable man. As a senator he would be in the senate and not skurrying about at the beck and call of Hearst or anybody else. As a republican, he would refrain from the effort to defeat and humiliate a republican administration.

Hearst wants Johnson re-elected. Brisbane, another hired employee, cheeps valorously a sort of "Me, too." A recalcitrant bunch in the senate, always intent on turbulence, and none constructive, would like to have their pal sent back into their midst.

These are not reasons for sending him. On the contrary.

There seems to have developed a new opportunity for catching the bootleggers. These offenders rely for immunity upon bribery of officials.

An honest set of officials unable to "get the goods" on a moonshiner, could get them on anybody seeking to buy immunity. A bootlegger retired by reason of trying to bribe, is as effectually out of business as though retired by reason of his regular line of activity.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

Let me bring a message of great joy to fat folks. Being fatty myself, I know what a heaven it will open before them. I'll admit that it is not a sure message. Not a bona fide revelation. It is merely the expression of a doubt.

But I'll be a good fellow. I'll do my doubting right out on the street.

I do not believe that the average fat person is the gainer by a strenuous course of diet or exercise designed to reduce his flesh. I do not eat nearly as much as does my office mate. I run around quite as much as he does. Yet he is as skinny as a Mexican's dog, while I am plump as a partridge. His father and grandfather were bony folks and mine were fat. There is one difference between us. We're bred that way we are. And apart from that——

"I'm getting too fat," said my bosom friend, Mr. Adolph Barkley. "I have been reading up on this fat stuff. It weighs you down, it clogs the blessed bean, it annoys the liver, and it makes you sleep heavily when you should be out playing golf. Me for the loveliness of line hereafter."

'Dolph has de-fatted himself. He has no more tummy now than a pollywog. His chest and shoulders are magnificent. His face is thin and lined and aristocratic looking. He is the admired of all ladies. They fall for 'Dolphus in shuddering heaps. No neighborhood party is complete without him. He has bought a complete new outfit of clothes. But—

By a mere coincidence he has had $145 worth of carbuncles since he began this beautifying process. He has had a doctor in to see him two or three times a week and has had to do classic poses for the professional person—hopping on one foot, breathing deep, saying "ha—and has been ordered to eat more and sleep more.

"You're quite all right," the doctor said, with that hollow air of gayety that would not deceive a sandflea—"quite all right, ha ha ha. Just a little rest, yes? And drop around to see me every third day."

"I'll get that when 'Dolphus begins to eat like a human being again—in moderation, always in moderation, but not in starvation—all his symptoms will disappear.

I've been there myself.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA E. STEWART

One of the woman characters in a recent book is made to say in regard to her married life: "Some part of me is always hungry. I have to pretend . . . Would it not be wonderful if one had not to pretend any game, but could just love so well and be so satisfied with one another that there would be no fear of losing? . . ."

Very wonderful. And also very possible—always provided one has been wise in choosing a life partner. It's one of the ideals which lies deep in everyone's heart, this ideal of a perfect companionship. Every song of sentiment, every love poem, every book romance holds as the germ of its concept this ideal of companionship that is perfect, without a spectre of unfaith or dissatisfaction hidden in the background. Marriages may come to pass because of propinquity of world interest, of sex glamour. But always this search for perfect companionship goes on—and is the innocent cause of much of the tragedy of life.

There wouldn't be quite as much tragedy if more of us were willing to play fair. We want the result without the effort—a partnership in dividing the profits, but not a partnership in putting funds. We'd think anyone crazy who expected us to give money for worthless junk. And life is merciless—a veritable Shylock—in bargain. Truth for truth, efforts to understand for understand, patience for patience, industry for industry, forbearance for forbearance, self-sacrifice for self-sacrifice, all this she demands in marriage life in return for perfect companionship. But life pays well. It is worth every bit of the price asked.

BEST EXPLAINED BY CHAIRMAN BEN. W. HOOPER OF THE UNITED STATES RAILROAD LABOR BOARD IN HIS STATEMENT OF JULY 1ST READING AS FOLLOWS:

"In this case the conflict is not between the employer and the oppressed employes. The people of this country, through an act of congress, signed by President Wilson, established a tribunal to decide such disputes over wages and working conditions which are submitted to it in a proper manner. It is the decision by this tribunal against which the shopcrafts are striking.

"Regardless of any question of the right of the men to strike, the men who take the strikers' places are merely accepting the wages and working conditions prescribed by a government tribunal and are performing a public service. They are not accepting the wages and working conditions which an employer is trying to impose. For this reason public sentiment and full governmental power will protect the men who remain in their positions and new men who may come in."

Adequate provisions have been made for the full protection of all new employes, the same as old employes who have remained loyally at work.

PERFECT SYSTEM BAKERY OPENS TOMORROW

When citizens of Glendale avail themselves of the invitation to call upon the Perfect System bakery, which opens its doors tomorrow, at 128 North Brand, it will find an establishment spotlessly clean, which will be open to close-up inspection. There the bakers will be seen at work and all the claims made by the proprietor will be substantiated.

Mr. E. S. Learey and wife, who have recently come to Glendale from Greensboro, North Carolina, will have charge of the bakery. Their slogan is "quality goods." Mr. Learey says: "We use the highest priced flour on the market, the best of butter and only pure lard and fresh eggs. Doughnuts will be made in the window and the public is invited to come in and sample them.

"The store is to open with as full a line of bakery goods as it will be possible to manufacture in the coming 12 hours. Everything on sale will have been made on the premises and no stale goods will be carried over."

Mr. and Mrs. Dearey are also opening a store in San Bernardino and plan to establish a chain of bakeries as soon as they can secure suitable locations.

HIGH GRADE WALL PAPER SACRIFICE SALE

Harry Moore, the East Broadway paint and wall paper merchant, is putting on a special sale of high grade wall papers, commencing today, which promises to be one of the biggest events of the kind ever staged in Glendale.

Mr. Moore only recently received a carload of wall paper from the east, and has placed the entire stock on sale at prices that should prove very attractive to the buying public. Mr. Moore is desirous of making room for a new line of paints, etc., to arrive soon and must close out a good share of this stock at once.

W. F. McNamara and family, 945 North Louise street started the other day on a six weeks' leisurely trip through California, Oregon and Washington, into British Columbia. Mr. McNamara is Pacific coast representative of the Chicago firm, Carson Perie & Scott.

GREGG—Glen inside

A very pretty home wedding took place Tuesday evening, when Miss Margaret D. Gregg and I. S. Brown, both of Glendale, were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Gregg, of 240 North Central avenue. The single ring ceremony was used, Rev. C. M. Salderwood, pastor of the First Congregational church, officiating.

The spacious rooms were a bower of pink and white carnations, gracefully resting in tall baskets. At one end of the living room was a bank of ferns, which formed an altar, on either side of which were tall baskets of pink and white flowers.

The bride came to the altar on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage, the wedding march from Lohengrin being played by Mrs. L. N. Hagood. Miss Gregg was beautifully gowned in white canton crepe, trimmed with crystal beads, and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses. There were no attendants. Just preceding the ceremony, Miss Julia Robinson sang "Because," accompanied by Mrs. L. N. Hagood.

Following the marriage, which was witnessed by about 60 relatives and friends, a buffet supper was served and the young couple left for a two week's wedding trip. Upon their return they will take an apartment until their new home on West Myrtle street is completed. They received many beautiful wedding gifts of silver, cut-glass and linens.

Miss Gregg is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Gregg, of 240 North Central avenue. She graduated from the local high school with the class of 1917, and attended the University of California at Berkeley for a short time.

Mr. Brown is the son of Mrs. O. L. Kilborn, of 217 West Lomita avenue, and both young people have lived here about 12 years. He graduated in the class of 1916 from Glendale high. Both young people are well-known here and have a host of friends.

FIRST EXCURSION VISITS CITY'S NEW PARK

Rugged Hills and Dales Give Good Opportunity for Picnics

By GERTRUDE GIBBS

The excursion organized by Secretary Pilling of the Credit Men's association to take the committee which is to have charge of the big city picnic August 15, to the new city park, developed great enthusiasm on the part of all who participated. It cemented the resolution of the committee to give the big affair there no matter what it costs in the way of hard work in preparation, for the park is in the wild as yet except that some very excellent work has been done in clearing brush from the ground by Walter Jones of the Jones Brass company, Los Angeles, who has been acting on behalf of Elizabeth Jones, who sold it to the city.

Mayor Robinson wanted to go, but couldn't, and Secretary Reeves also wanted to go, and did. As members of the party expressed their admiration of the city's purchase, he beamed more and more because, in a way, he was the humble instrument of its acquirement. The city had previously owned 68 acres about half a mile east of Verdugo road and north of the Jones holding. It is hillside property facing south, and therefore bare of timber. In figuring on a method of getting a road to this acreage so that it could be utilized in some way, Mr. Reeves had occasion to frequently consult Mr. Jones relative to a right of way through his tract and the conference led to the proposition to sell to the city at a price approximating $577 an acre.

The ride was along Verdugo road to a point opposite the entrance to Glorietta street in Verdugo Woodlands. There a gate gives entrance to the park, which has a frontage of something more than 1,300 feet on Verdugo road, extending east a sufficient distance to make a block of 105 acres which, added to the 68 already owned, gives the city 173 acres in a body, some of which is worth at least $1,500 an acre. It is a part of the old Francisco Verdugo holding under the original Verdugo grant, and not a very great distance away, in a vineyard which borders Verdugo road on the north, is Madame Verdugo, who is 108 years old.

This land rises from a meadow to hill slopes facing north which are clothed with beautiful timber. Though the sun shone and some of the party are not enthusiastic hikers, they could not resist the lure of a trail leading to a rock-ribbed ravine, where a spring trickles out and waters the ferns which beautify its banks and the tiger lillies that lean above it. Flowers that have long been out of bloom in other places were found here in scattering remnants, the blue pentstemmon, the prickly phlox, the wild honeysuckle, and phlox, the wild honeysuckle, and Everywhere possibilities for great beauty were discovered and one of Mr. Reeves' projects for the future which found favor is a drive along the ridge of the hills which command a view of Catalina and all the bright prospect of sea and valley between. On the other side lies Flintridge, which will probably be as anxious for a rim road as is Glendale.

The immedite concern of the committee, however, was the picnic facilities, which it was agreed could be worked out with the meadow mentioned for the games, and with many nooks for the refreshment tables. Mr. Reeves assured the committee he and all the forces of the city are ready to cooperate in the carrying out of their plans as soon as they are formulated and announced, and that means the building of tables and benches, the construction of a platform for dancing, the clearing away of weeds from the meadow, and such other work as will make the grounds as fit as it will be possible to make them within the limited time between now and August 15.

Glendale has been in such need of a city park that this purchase at so reasonable a figure seems providential, the more so because a Long Beach syndicate was negotiating for it at the same figure, but graciously gave the city priority. It could not have been secured had it been necessary to wait for the uncertainties of a bond issue to finance it.

As the matter now stands, the city will get it for about half what it would cost under a bond issue, since it will be paid for by direct tax within about three years and save the long interest-paying period which doubles the cost of municipal property when bought under bond issues.

On the property are two small frame houses, one with a neat setting of lawn and flowers. Adjoining is a big vegetable garden which reveals the excellent fertility of the soil, which is growing a fair crop of corn without irrigation.

The excursion party included Secretary Pilling, City Manager Reeves, William H. Hooper, William Moore, Mr. Potter of Bentley Schoeneman Co., C. J. Hatz, Mr. Carr of the Baldwin Shirt company, and H. M. Butts.

Mrs. Georgia Murphy of Indianapolis, Ind., and Mrs. F. S. Card of Patterson avenue, are spending the day at Long Beach.

St. Mark's guild will meet in the guild hall Thursday afternoon at 2:30. A large attendance is desired to begin to make arrangements for the fall work.

Y. M. C. A. CLANS AT CATALINA REPORT

Glendale and San Gabriel Forces Descend on Island

AVALON, Calif., July 17.—On the morning of July 12, 1922, at 10 o'clock the Glendale clan of the Y. M. C. A. and the tribes of San Gabriel met at Wilmington to sail for the conquest of Catalina island. Chief Kelly was on hand early, giving a warwhoop from time to time to assemble his clan. About four minutes before scheduled sailing time Chieftain MacDonald arrived in his new Dodge car and attempted to drive his car right on the boat, but was stopped by the captain, and after parking it in a stall, came aboard just as the captain shouted "All in."

The first attack by the united tribes was made on the monsters in the deep in mid-ocean. The poor fish and other sea animals were assaulted with beans, hash, scrambled eggs, cherry pits, watermelon and grapenuts. It was not the intention of the tribes to actually kill the monsters with these missiles, but to render the waters of the deep so putrid that the fish, seals, etc., would die to come to the surface. Some of the boys refused to join in the attack, so it was not wholly a success. The waters were rendered rather uninhabitable, however, as was proved by the fact that one monster rose to the surface several times and proceeded to spit out the distasteful water which he had attempted to swallow. The tribes feel confident that after eating camp fare for ten days they will be able to renew the assault on the whale who escaped the first attack.

Special mention should be made of one of the assistant chieftains during the attack, viz., Assistant Chieftain Slick. He was standing near the rail, aiding in the attack, when Chieftain MacDonald attempted to urge him on to the fray. "Too bad, old buck," he said, "that you have such a weak stomach." "Weak, nothing," said Slick. "I'm throwing ammunition as fast as any of the rest of the warriors."

On arrival at Avalon the warriors leaped from the steamer and stood waiting the next fray. Chieftain Xelly, balancing on one foot on a post on the pier, waved his tomahawk high in the air. "Go forth, my warriors," he said, "and raid the town. You may eat lobsters, shrimp salad and Chinese noodles, but return at 3 o'clock, bringing your trophies on the inside of your belts." With one grand warwhoop the tribes swooped down on the town.

All went well with but one exception. Assistant Chieftain Hayden rescued Assistant Chieftain Ford, Rev. Ford, from a poolhall, where he had mistaken the billiard balls for the duck and goose eggs of the jungles and was attempting to devour them. Had he succeeded, no doubt his next attack on the fish would have been successful.

The tribes reassembled at 3 o'clock and were piloted to camp by a friendly warrior, Nucoa Pasture Butterfield, who had come to welcome the visitors.

At the first sight of the final hunting grounds the tribes fairly went wild. They threw their rolls of blankets at the boatman and nearly swamped his canoe. They were all safely landed at last, and thus ended the voyage.

'TURN TO THE RIGHT' AT GLENDALE

"Turn to the Right," which proved such a source of wholesome delight as a play, yesterday opened a three-days' run as a motion picture at the Glendale theater and in its screen version it proves fair even to exceed the popularity which it recorded on the stage.

Rex Ingram, the youthful director who won fame through his creations of "The Four Horsemen of the Ppocalypse" and "The Conquering Power," has scored again in this picture portrayal of John Golden's stage success by Winchell Smith and John E. Hazzard, which is presented by John Golden and Marcus Loew as a Metro release.

"Turn to the Right" is the story of a country youth who unjustly serves a prison sentence. While there he becomes acquainted with two crooks. When freed he determines to go back home and arrives to find that the village skinflint is about to foreclose the mortgage. With the aid of his two crook pals a way is found to beat out the miser, while the influence of the trusting, religious mother serves to turn the two crooks to the right and head them on a new road of love and happiness.

Alice Terry, the heroine in "The Four Horsemen" and "The Conquering Power," again demonstrates her dramatic power as the winsome sweetheart of the boy for whom she had waited so long. Jack Mulhall played the boy with sympathy and understanding.

WALTER GORMAN IS GIVEN TEMPLE RITE

The Order of the Temple was given Walter Gorman Monday night at the regular meeting of Glendale commandery, No. 53, held in Masonic temple.

The dinner was served at 6 o'clock and an especially noteworthy feature was the large number of past officers and commanders present. The work of the Order of the Temple was then put on. It was decided that on next Monday evening the work will begin at 4:30 in the afternoon and they will give the Order of the Red Cross and the Order of Malta. The dinner will be served at 6 o'clock and the Order of the Temple will be given two candidates, following the dinner.

Lodge members are working hard during July to get their work finished up, because in August they want to have a vacation and do no work after the first Monday in the month.

'I AM THE LAW,' CURWOOD'S STORY AT T. D. & L.

Smashing Tale With Wonderful Cast, Is Shown Today

"I am the Law," the James Oliv[er] Curwood story of the frozen nort[h] now showing at the T. D. and [L.] theatre, is one of the few real[ly] great pictures of the season. Th[e] cast is a most notable one, inclu[d]ing Kenneth Harlan, Alice Lak[e], Gaston Glass, Noah Beery, Wallac[e] Beery and Rosemary Theby.

As a writer Curwood is know[n] for his tales of adventure, r[o]mance, love, thrills, pathos and h[u]manity. "I Am the Law" smack[s] with red-blooded action and a wo[n]derful story. To not see "I A[m] the Law" is to really miss a tr[e]mendous screen offering.

The Toonerville comedy on th[e] same program, is a scream. Th[e] news weekly of current events [is] most interesting. Altogether th[e] T. D. and L. show this mid-week [is] a real one.

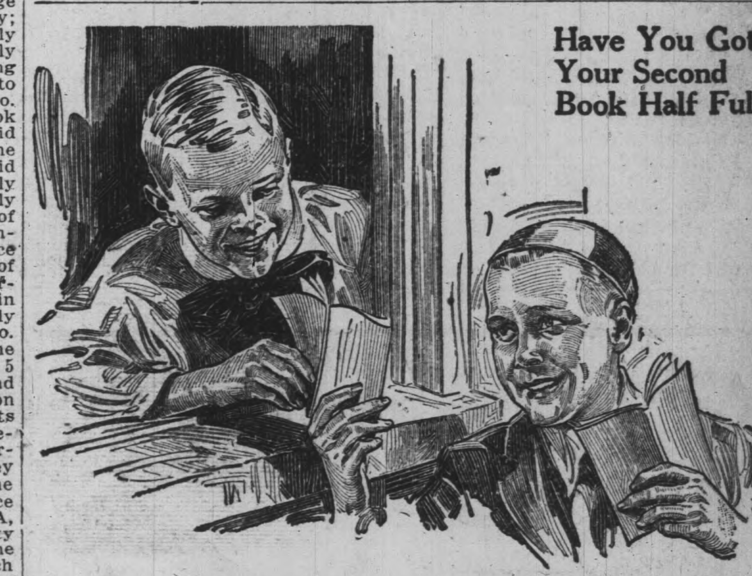

EXPLAINING IT

"Insect!" he bellowed, "why d[id] you call me insect?"

His wife smiled sweetly.

"Because when I married you [I] got stung."

Have You Got Your Second Book Half Full?

How Many BankEES Have You Saved This Month?

HOW many BankEES have you got now? Some boys and girls have filled several books already.

They say it's wonderful to have several dollars a month to spend for things they want.

You, too, know how easy it is to earn money this way.

First you went to a BankEE store man in your neighborhood and asked him for a BankEE book. He was glad to give it to you, wasn't he?

Then you told your father and mother and friends about this wonderful way of earning money. They all promised to buy at the BankEE stores and save the BankEES for you.

Gee, didn't they come fast after that? You ran errands and did odd jobs to earn them. Why, it took no time at all to fill the first book.

Then down you went to the bank and turned your book in for a dollar, or did you put it in a savings account.

You could do either, you know.

Or say, are you one of the boys and girls who hasn't started yet? You're losing money if you haven't. Better start now.

THE WIDOW FINDS S HE'S BEEN FOOLED

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

. Muskrat was right—as usual. only way to silence the Widow rrel was to scare her. And Widow Squirrel was scared. didn't see who the wise pad- aw had pointed at, but she 't stop to look. "Jump, hide listen!" is the squirrel adage. jumped—for Tad Coon's hick- she had just left. She hid— ad Coon's hole. And she lis- d—but of course she didn't any one, because there wasn't one to hear. Dr. Muskrat had pointing at the moon. But stillness scared her more than sound. She hadn't the least who it was she was hiding ust my luck!" she gritted her . "That coon's gone too. All wanted was an excuse. Well, find me here when he comes again."

t he didn't. Tad hadn't the test idea of coming back as as there was any chance of Widow's being there. He and k Squirrel were chuckling to nselves like two naughty little s as they scuttled under the e into the cornfield. Not till did they take breath to do talking.

Now you thee," Frisk began. at'th why I won't go home. tan't thtop her bein' mad. She don't lithen. I telled you should say not!" gasped Tad. on't blame you. Did you hear t she said? She said I'd eaten !"

O, yeth," said Frisk. "I meant ome out to show her you didn't. ven she'd be mad 'tause I'd be radicting."

'm glad you didn't." Aad wag- his head. "The thing to do n she shows up is just to hide keep on hiding. But where e you, anyway?" he wanted to w.

risk described the place. hat's that?" asked Tad. "It nds like Malty Kitten's old hole. it couldn't have been, because looked there."

That'th dess where it wath, n," Frisk nodded. "Becauthe did look. But I had a spider over my fathe."

ad burst out laughing. "Wough! ugh!" he howled. "Three yaps a yowl for that spider! What a joke on her! Wait till the Woodsfolk know this. She'll never hear the end of it."

And that's just what the Widow thought when she came creeping back to the flat stone. She stum-

"Did you hear what she said? She said I'd eaten you!"

bled onto that piece of spider web. And she remembered right where it came from. No one but Frisk could have dropped it there. He was all right, then. But she'd been saying such awful things that she just couldn't stay and take them back. So she dug a hole in the sand and buried that web before any one else should see it. And she didn't wait to do any more talking. She skipped off home in a hurry.

NEXT STORY—WHAT HAPPENED TO A DISOBEDIENT SQUIRREL.

The new teacher was having a bad time of it. The class was very dull—or pretended to be—and seemed incapable of answering the easiest of questions.

"What is a person called that steals?" asked the teacher persuasively.

There was no answer.

"Now, Herbert," said the teacher, "suppose I was to put my hand in your pocket and take out a penny, what would you call me?"

"A sure-enough conjurer," replied Herbert, with conviction.

MONUMENT TO THE ARMISTICE

Plans Are Completed for Erection to Commemorate Nov. 11

PARIS, July 19.—Plans have been completed for the erection of a monument to commemorate the signature of the armistice in the forest of Compiegne, on Nov. 11, next, the fourth anniversary of the historic event. It will mark the spot where the German delegates admitted defeat and told Foch they had come to beg for peace.

The preparatory work is in charge of a committee of the League of Veterans, with Premier Poincare as honorary president. At present the spot where the armistice was signed is marked only by two inscriptions on pieces of wood nailed to trees, one indicating the place where Foch's train stopped, the other where the German plenipotentiaries stepped from the train.

It is proposed to erect in the center of the clearing a tombstone similar to that under which France's "Unknown Soldier" reposes under the Arc de Triomphe, the idea of the committee being that the spot is memorable chiefly because there German imperialism was buried. On the stone will be an inscription of which the following is a translation:

"HERE
ON NOVEMBER 11, 1918,
PERISHED
THE CRIMINAL PRIDE
OF
THE GERMAN EMPIRE
VANQUISHED
BY THE FREE PEOPLES
IT TRIED TO ENSLAVE"

Marble plaques will mark the exact spot where Marshal Foch and the Germans stood.

An absent-minded man paused in the middle of the road. His face bore the far-away expression of a poet. A motor-bus driver, whose patience was rapidly becoming exhausted as he slowed down to let the dreamer cross the road, leaned from his seat and said with a polite drawl:

"Er—Mr. Shakespeare, would you mind telling me what are your plans in connection with this matter of crossing the street?"

Miss Helen Clay Frick Seriously Ill

Miss Helen Clay Frick.

Miss Helen Clay Frick, daughter of the late Henry Clay Frick, of Pittsburgh and New York, is reported seriously ill at her estate at Pride's Crossing, near Boston. She suffered a nervous breakdown as a result of her untiring efforts cataloguing the works of American artists in her father's New York palace.

Church was over, the congregation filed slowly out and gathered in little chattering groups in the churchyard.

Presently the minister came up and joined a select little party. He introduced an old sea captain to the leading light of the village, a wealthy Mr. Smith.

"You must have seen each other in church today," said the beaming clergyman.

"Sure," said the old salt. "I'd was sleepin' in the next bunk to me."

"I never should have known you from your photographs," said the candid hostess to her nephew's fiancee, when she saw her for the first time. "Reggie told me you were so pretty."

"No," said Reggie's fiancee, "I'm not pretty, so I have to try to be nice and it's such a bore. Have you ever tried?"

POLAND NOW ASKS SHIPS

Will Good Uncle Sam Send a Few? Thanks

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Uncle Sam is asked to give Poland a navy, under terms of a bill introduced by Senator France, republican, Maryland.

The bill authorized the president, "if he shall deem it consistent with the public welfare and the terms of the treaty obligations of the United States to donate to Poland six of such ships of our navy as under the terms of the treaties with Great Britain, France and Japan will no longer be needed by the United States and are listed to be scrapped."

Six cruisers are preferable, the Maryland senator said.

Donation of the ships, France explained, would be an expression on the part of the United States of "warm friendship and affection for the people of Poland, who have recently, after many years of oppression, secured the blessings of liberty and self-government."

While the procedure would be unusual, it was explained the gift of six cruisers would in no way tend to "make Poland a militant nation."

On the other hand, France said, "it would do much to stabilize and promote peace throughout Central Europe.

"America cannot remain aloof from European affairs. America cannot tolerate oppression of small nations.

"Why not, then," France asked, "give Poland six ships for which we have no use? It would save Poland millions of dollars, for if we do not give her ships, she will be forced to build a navy of her own. The gift, moreover, will be cheaper for America than scrapping the vessels.

"Poland, hemmed in by strong nations, but with an outlet to the sea is without a navy to protect her national safety," France continued.

"It would be an exceptionally generous and grateful act for the United States to show her faith in Poland's future by donating six cruisers."

Stories of Famous Cases

By Detective NICK HARRIS

THE SECRET CIPHER

In Three Parts—Part 3

"Boy," she said, "just tell me one thing. I'm going to stick. I know you are not wrong. Only tell me, why did you do it?"

Billy Shane, bank robber, raised his head and looked into the eyes of the woman he loved most in all the world. In his face there was something of sheer wonderment that she could not read—something that he himself could not understand.

"Kid," he said, "I—I don't know. I've tried to answer that question to myself, up there in the jail, and I can't. I don't know. I don't know. God knows I'd like to know."

He buried his face in her hair and the sheriff turned away with a lump in his own throat, while they cried there together—with little Ruth clinging big eyed to "Daddy's" coat and not understanding it all any better than the rest of them.

And so Billy Shane went to the penitentiary—ten years was the sentence. He went out of the lives of "mumsy" and baby Ruth, shackled to a deputy sheriff. To her dying day, "Mumsy" will never forget the look in his face—the dumb, mute appeal that he gave her as the doors of the courtroom closed behind him and shut him out of her life. There was behind it all a big, unanswered question—a question that many a poor devil has tried to answer and never been able to do:

"Why, oh, why did I do it?"

There were long hard days after that. "Mumsy" was left all alone with Baby Ruth on her hands. She had to find work, and that had to be accomplished in the city. For in the little town where they had lived, she was a convict's wife, but in the city she was nobody. And nobodies can exist in the cities if they are not too particular.

Billy Shane, known as a numbered entity now on penitentiary records, wrote often to them both. His letters were always cheerful and hopeful.

"I am doing fine now," he said in one of them. "They have made me a trusty. Love and kisses to little Ruth. Buy her a big teddy bear and tell her daddy sent it. Please don't let her forget me."

The first page of love and kisses was never sent, because authorities are wary of blank white pages covered with crosses. "Mumsy" came one day to see Billy, and for the first time learned that the letter had been rifled. She went to the warden, sobbing.

"Oh, if you only knew what that would mean to little Ruth," she said. "That's all she has of her daddy—those kisses. I can't bring her here—to see him."

The warden had a couple of children of his own. His heart was touched.

"All right," he said, and straightway issued orders that Billy Shane's page of kisses to little Ruth could be sent with his regular letters to his wife.

Threafter prison censors smiled when they studied the letters from No. 56,789. There was always a blank white page there—"kisses for Baby Ruth"—they tucked them back carefully in the envelope, resealed, as is the prison custom, and dropped it in the mail box.

So matters went for a month, two months. And then one day—shortly after a visit of "Mumsy" to Billy Shane—a visit from which she came away bright eyed and a little flushed—something happened to disturb the even tenor of the penitentiary routine. There was a sensational break. And Billy Shane, No. 56,789, was the one who got away.

How he managed it was shown clearly when the corridor guard, missing him at morning roll call, entered his cell and found the bars filed neatly through and his bedding knotted into a rope. The discovery was made only after Shane had been gone several hours, but the dragnet went out just the same. He was finger printed and photographed and the police departments all over the country had only to turn to a card index to meet him face to face, staring up at them.

Somewhere near a thousand detectives started looking for Billy Shane. The warden bethought him at once of "mumsy." He got the city department on the long distance.

"Better watch her," he suggested. "Shane was always strong for his wife and kid. He'll connect with them sooner or later."

Two detectives hurried up to the address the warden had given—a cheap lodging house in the poorer district of the city. There they found the dark, poorly ventilated rooms which "mumsy" occupied with little Ruth. A woman across the hallway cared for the child during the day while "mumsy" was at work. At night she heard them romping together.

But—"mumsy," too, had flown, and with her went little Ruth. The detectives found nothing in the room but evidences of a hasty departure—and a few blank, white sheets scattered here and there on the floor. One of the detectives gathered these up and took them along to the captain. It was all they had for a clue.

"Carefully prearranged," said the captain, when they told him of their findings. "Let's see these sheets."

They laid them out on the captain's desk, marked with crosses in lead pencil—"kisses for Baby Ruth," inscribed in Shane's handwriting. The captain and his men humped over them, trying to make out a code or a cipher of some kind. Finally the captain sunk back.

"I guess they are what they seem to be," he said, "but I'm not satisfied."

He called in a handwriting expert. The expert thumbed his nose and held the papers up to the light. Then he struck a match and held it under the sheet nearest his hand. The others watched him in fascination. Slowly, like a dream materializing into a reality, carefully drawn brown letters began to show on the paper.

"—a small file, and smuggle it in when you come next time. God help me—it is my one chance to get away and start a new life. I know you will come."

These were the words that came out under the influence of the heat. The handwriting man looked up.

"Lemon juice," he said. "He wrote in lemon juice with a wooden toothpick. Heat brings it out. It fades after a bit and the paper turns white again."

So this then was the answer. They heated the other sheets, and the whole thing became as clear as crystal. "Mumsy," always loyal, always clinging to the faith that she had placed in her "big boy," had received his secret messages in the innocent appearing pages that carried "kisses for Baby Ruth." It was so simple it was elemental. It was she, of course, who had brought him the file with which he had engineered the escape. One sheet contained the trysting place:

—"steamer on the 10th for South America."

That was all. With the riddle solved, the captain jumped to action. But he was too late. The steamer had left. And it carried no wireless, for in those days the radio had not come into its own. And somewhere, southbound on the Atlantic, was Billy Shane and "Mumsy" and Baby Ruth, striking out like pioneers of the early days into a new country for the beginning of a new life.

It may be said that this is all wrong—that Billy Shane should have paid the penalty for his misdeed. But should he? That is a big question and one that the world is trying hard to answer to itself right now. Billy Shane was not correctly balanced. He was subnormal He was a riddle even to himself. Under different conditions, different environment, and changed climate, might he not develop into a valuable, useful citizen. The world will say—no. The world is wrong.

Billy Shane today is a big character in South America. That is why I am not using his true name. But Shane's true name comes in over the southern cables now and then, attached to big enterprises. He has made good. He has squared his account with life. He has mended the weak link that snapped back there in the little country town with $20,000 in bank money within reach of his fingers, and has become a powerful, strong citizen.

And right now the bank that prosecuted him would be proud to shake his hand, for it, too, learned the lesson which every big institution has to learn—that, where human elements are concerned and where big strains are imposed, it is best not to place temptation loosely and carelessly where the weak links ride. This is a good rule of financial mechanics.

I will not say that I am glad Billy Shane escaped from jail, escaped the long prison term, any more than I am willing to say that I am glad Roy Gardner escaped. But I do say this. That by so doing, Billy Shane has turned himself into a useful, honest, fair playing citizen. Would he have become that had he remained in jail for the ten years to which he was sentenced?

Tomorrow, "The Pair of Shoes," the opening episode of the checkered life of "Jimmy the Rat."

A real estate agent had been engaged to drive a prospective purchaser and his wife over a large estate in the west of England. He wanted to adopt American methods as he understood them. As the car wound along the lanes he pointed out the parks and meadows and woods of the estate, launching into panegyrics. Finally he gazed up at the sun and concluded: "And there's sunshine for you! There's the sun. Can you beat it?"

The teacher was exasperated. The class was idle and inattentive, and just a little out of hand. In desperation the teacher changed the subject from mathematics to science and began to ask each boy and girl questions about the great inventions of the age.

"Now, then," she said impatiently, "What was the first talking machine made of?"

After a while a voice from the back of the class broke the silence: "Please, miss, a rib."

To Cultivate Ideals

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers.)

Vaguely, yet clearly enough to be made uncomfortable by the thought, you appreciate that you are not living up to your possibilities, are not making nearly as much of your life as you might make of it.

Somehow, you do not know exactly how, you have drifted into an easy-going, ambitionless existence. You do your work faithfully enough, but in a routine, mechanical way. Your leisure you give entirely to amusements, and even your amusements have become largely a matter of routine to you.

When circumstances prevent you from amusing yourself in your customary ways you are oppressed with a feeling of ennui. For lack of something better to do you go to bed at an early hour. Thus you bear witness to the truth of the saying that sleep is the unfailing refuge of the bored.

But latterly it has dawned on you that this is not living life as it is meant to be lived. You wonder what you ought to do about it. You wonder, for that matter, if there is anything you can do about it.

There is much you can do. One thing you must do, if you are sincerely desirous of having a more satisfying life, is to exert yourself to regain the ideals which undoubtedly you possessed in your youth, but which you unfortunately have let slip from you.

In youth, you will remember, you dreamed splendid dreams. You had a longing to achiece great things, and you promised yourself you would achieve great things. And your thoughts were as generous as they were ardent. If you dreamed of fame, you dreamed also of winning fame through rendering notable service to you fellow-men.

Unhappily, later contacts changed the current of your dreaming and in time put an end to your dreams. You fell in with associates whose dominant thinking was of an inferior, self-cenetred sort. Psychic infection from them brought deterioration in you.

That is your history in brief—the history of many, many people. And if you would make the old ideals your own once more, it plainly suggests the course you should take.

Put yourself often—daily, if possible—into touch with people who are themselves animated by high ideals. There probably are some such people among your friends and acquaintances of today. If not, form new acquaintanceships, new friendships that will help to stimulate you, to reawaken the ambitions and the noble cravings of the long ago.

And acquire the habit of going to places—to churches, lecture halls, concert rooms, art galleries—where you may be sure of being influenced toward better thinking. Acquire the habit also of reading books—particularly poetry—in which the ideal finds concrete expression.

Do this for only a little while—give yourself, that is to say, an environment that makes for personality enrichment and expansion—and you will no longer suffer from the discontent now with reason troubling you.

For you will have put yourself—and you will know that you have put yourself—fairly in the way to attain that creative self-realization which is the natural heritage of all born into this world.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

"Well, the Republican party faces the loss of the monkey and circus-elephant vote," declared Senator Dumm, throwing aside his paper. "I predict both animals will go over to the Democratic side in a body nevt eltction."

"Whatzamatter?" asked Representative Dummer.

"The high tariff on shelled and unshelled peanuts, as voted by the United States senate," replied Senator Dumm. "Didn't you read about it?"

"I only got as far as the debate on soya beans," admitted Dummer.

"Well, the senate voted, 52 to 18, to raise the tariff on shelled peanuts to four cents a pound and on unshelled peanuts to three cents a pound," explained Dumm.

"It's another blow at the common people!" declared Dummer, with rising indignation. "Congress has discovered that thousands of wage-earners, unable to buy meats, vegetables, and other foodstuffs owing to the high cost, have been feeding their wives and kiddies on peanuts. Naturally it has determined to put a stop to the practice. If the public is allowed to develop a peanut appetite—if we become a nation of peanut eaters—what will become of the Chicago packers?"

"As a matter of fact your logic is unsound," admonished Dumm. "Peanuts have been among our most expensive products for the past several years. The good old 5-cent bag that used to hold enough peanuts to feed the elephants, monkeys, Little Arthur, Sister Sue, Ma, and Uncle Otis and still leave enough for munching purposes at tomorrow's baseball game, is as extinct as the dodo. They've been reducing the peanut bags for nearly a decade. The process has been gradual; summer after summer Dominick, the Italian vendor, has been buying smaller bags and putting in fewer peanuts until today a circus elephant pays no attention to anybody who is carrying less than a dozen bags. I should say the public no wis buying peanuts at the rate of 5 cents a half dozen. Under a higher tariff they'll be sold at 3 cents each or two for a nickel. Peanuts soon may give the tone to fashionable dinners that was formerly given by stuffed olives. I wouldn't be surprised to see upper crusters wearing peanut pendants, lavallieres, and earrings."

"What's the idea, then?" asked Dummer. "Can it be this congress is trying to keep us out of peanuts the way the last one kept us out of war?"

"I dunno," reasoned Dumm, "but congress should proceed with caution in this peanut business. The Constitution of the United States plainly stipulates that every citizen is entitled to life, liberty, and the pursuit of peanuts, shelled or unshelled. The government has taken away the peopul's beer, light wines, rye, Scotch, Bourbon, rum, and honest-to-goodness gin. By the same process it has taken away our pretzels, sliced bologna, and cheese-cubes. Blue laws and censors have taken away our bathing beauties, our snappy burlesque shows and our vampish movies. But I raise a finger of warning to those who would take away our peanuts!"

"The peepul will never stand for that," agreed Dummer. "The American public will endure much(sacrifice abundantly, but when it wants peanuts it wants peanuts. An uprising will be sure to follow and at the head of it you'll find the baseball fan and the Girl Who Cracks Peanut Shells Between Her Teeth During the Tense Moment in Every Drama."

"I wouldn't be surprised to see a revolt," said Dumm. "The whole thing amounts to a sort of Peanut Prohibition law. The working classes may rise at any moment and parade the streets with banners bearing 'NO PEANUTS—NO WORK!' ultimatums."

"Do you know what I think congress is doing?" demanded Dummer.

"Playing peanut politics," declared Dummer, dodging.

C. H. RANDALL ARRAIGNS DIGEST VOTE

"Straw Ballots Are Made of Straw," He Declares

By CHARLES H. RANDALL
(Prohibition Congressman, 1915-21)

The Literary Digest is conducting a straw ballot on the prohibition question. The results as shown by the first week's poll indicate a large majority for prohibition, but paradoxical as it may seem the same vote shows up strongly for wine and beer.

First let me say that no one can question the sincerity of this well-known journal, nor the reliability of its published results. But when that is said, it is all that can be said for a straw ballot.

A straw ballot is rightly named. It invariably deceives because for some reason a straw ballot never in the end agrees with what actually happens at a real ballot box.

The reason for the strength of the wet voters in the present instance is easily arrived at. The wets have lost something which they are frantic to recover. Consequently they seize every effort to make a showing. On the other hand the drys are not inconvenienced by the absence of wet goods, consequently why exert themselves to vote in the Digest contest?

Did you ever see anyone run to catch a streetcar, which he had already boarded? That illustrates the attitude of the drys.

The hurry to vote, even in a straw ballot game, is indicative of the "wets" suffering from the drouth.

A real ballot was that recently taken by the Manufacturers' Record of Baltimore. A thousand letters were directed to the leading manufacturers, bankers, lawyers and physicians of the country, asking their views of prohibition, after two years of trial.

The result is summarized briefly as follows, though every reply was accompanied by a letter giving reasons for the attitude taken. Seven hundred replied:

	Percent
For prohibition in some form	98.5
Against prohibition	1.5
For wine and beer	7.0
For wineand beer	7.0
Against Volstead law	1.25
Want Volstead law modified	.75
High license or Govt. control	1.0
Dispensary system	.25
Undecided or noncommittal	2.75

ONE BIG EFFORT WILL FINISH HOTEL DRIVE

So George A. Whitney Tells Chamber of Commerce Directors

It needs just one last grand fighting effort to assure the new hotel for Glendale. This long-needed, much-desired improvement is almost within Glendale's grasp—it is just cross the invisible line. To secure it for Glendale it is necessary only for the people here to carry out their end of the proposition—the other parties are ready, willing and anxious to hold up their end of the deal. This was the trend of the talk given by George A. Whitney, representative of Mr. Tremain of Los Angeles, at he meeting of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce yesterday.

"The people of Glendale are the finest bunch of men and women I have ever had the pleasure of working with," said Mr. Whitney. "They are hard workers from the word go and they have a gift to put things over such as I have never seen in any other community. Most of the local people who have been visited have signed up, but there are quite a few who ought to come. Many of these doubtless will sign up before the end of the week.

"With the expectation that the entire amount will have been subscribed by next Monday the hotel men are going right ahead with their work, and nothing will be left undone that would assure this improvement being completed by Christmas."

Mr. Bolen was present at this session and asked the chamber to invite E. B. Lewis, president of the Palos Verde project to speak in Glendale on what has been done and what is to be done by the Palos Verde syndicate. The board referred Mr. Bolen to the Glendale realty board, stating that if that organization gave this proposition its recommendation the chamber would give it serious consideration at its meeting next Tuesday noon.

THE PROBLEM
(As the Latest Novel Might Have it and the Heroine Might Say It)

I remember once in the old days
Before life was clear to view,
When all was simple and serene,
And my soul untroubled as a pan of milk
Before the skimmer came,
I loved him and threw him a kiss.

A kiss it was I remember. A kiss.
A simple and childish thing.
Something silly and incomplete.
Like the balloon the child bears to the circus.
Nothing about nothing I might say.
Or nothing and nothing which makes nothing.

And then the years passed.
I came to understand better all about life.
About psychology and complexes.
About urges and reactions.
I read all the books I could get.
And my soul began to grow.
Like a lily in the muck.
Or a mushroom in the dark.
But what does it matter about where growth takes place?
The soul must grow.
That is the ultimate.

So then after we were married I marveled,
That I had ever thrown such a thing as a kiss.
He taunted me with my growth,
Called me freakish. He hissed at me.
Swore a great oath.
And I threw something at him again.
This time a flatiron.
Ah, there is something to throw!
That is a new soul's weapon.
A kiss—bah!

And yet I am troubled.
Something went out of my soul.
On the wings of the kiss.
And something came into it.
Something that urged the flatiron on.
What was it?
Was it soul-growth perhaps?
I wonder.

VERBAL ATHLETES OF THE SENATE

Some Pack Mean Typewriters, Others Slashing Upper Tongues

WASHINGTON, July 19.—"Sportively speaking," the senate of these United States knows no political lines.

While acrimonious charges, counter-charges and threats fly furiously across the chamber during discussions of partisan measures, the senate "on the field" is all harmony and brotherly love.

Take, for instance, "Joe" Robinson, of Arkansas. On the floor, "Joe" packs as sport writers might say, "a mean verbal uppercut, and a slashing oratorical right."

On the golf course, he totally different. In fact, he keenly enjoys an early morning game with "Charley" Townsend, republican, Michigan, whom, at times, he opposes bitterly on the floor.

Golf is the game which makes all senators equal—and what's more—kindly and generous to political foes. But only on the links!

The senate, athletically, is "predominantly golf," though baseball, tennis, fishing and swimming claim a number of senatorial adherents.

Sport never interferes with the senate's work.

Every morning, while Capitol Hill is bathed in scarlet streamers of a rising son, McKinley, Illinois; Jones, Washington; Capper, Kansas; Kellogg, Minnesota, and Hitchcock, Nebraska, are "teeing off" at one of the numerous Washington links. McKinley and Jones invariably start at six o'clock on the public course in Potomac park. Others prefer the courses at the country clubs.

They will tell you—these senators who play every morning—that they aren't trying to make scores—"just playing a 'dub' game, to get in trim for senate sessions."

Nevertheless, a few shoot in the 80s, and in the recent play with newspapermen, the senatorial team won every match, the scribes not even finishing in the scoring columns.

Then, there is Willis of Ohio, the "Babe Ruth" of Capitol Hill. Any morning you can see him slamming out hits at the expense of some little page hurler, or covering the keystone sack with the expertness of an Eddie Collins, the pages tell you. Frelinghuysen also is a baseball addict, and has equipped senate pages with a complete baseball outfit.

At seven o'clock, Senator Pepper, of Pennsylvania, is playing tennis on the White House courts. He is the senate devotee of the game.

Senator Norris, Nebraska, is the aquatic star of the upper chamber. Practically every afternoon he practices in the small swimming pool in the senate office building.

There is nothing which Senator McCumber, North Dakota, likes quite so well as a quiet week-end fishing trip, away from the worries of the tariff and the soldier bonus. Sometimes, on these trips, he is accompanied by Senator Newberry, Michigan, also an ardent angler.

Motoring, horseback riding and walking claim a good number. It used to be Senator Lodge's boast that he never missed, rain or shine, walking from his home to the capitol. Borah, Idaho, is an enthusiastic horseman.

Whenever there is a dull afternoon in the senate, Harrison, Mississippi, and Spencer, Missouri, who staged many a merry word-battle when the Nat Goldstein case was under discussion, slip away to the ball park to watch Walter Johnson and the Washington team. Harrison seldam misses a home game.

KIMLIN PARTY IS EXPECTED BACK

Month's Trip to East Is Ended; to Return July 25

Dr. C. E. Kimlin, business manager of the Glendale hospital and sanitarium, and member of the city council, is expected to return home about July 25, after a month's trip throughout the east.

Mr. Kimlin, accompanied by Dr. Westphal, Bert N. Emerson and Mr. Salisbury, members of the board of directors of the Glendale sanitarium, left about three weeks ago on a tour of the east, visiting the large hospitals and sanitariums en route. Their main object was to get new ideas in the development of the Glendale institution, and they report a very interesting and educational trip.

Their first stop was at Boulder, Colo., at the large sanitarium there. Then they stopped at Hastings and Lincoln, Neb.; Wichita, Kan.; Madison, Wis.; Wabash Valley sanitarium, Indiana, and at a large one in Iowa. They visited at Chicago, Battle Creek, Mich., and Detroit, Mich. One of their most enjoyable stops was at Niagara Falls. In Massachusetts they visited at Boston, Melrose sanitarium and in Baltimore, Md., Mr. Kimlin was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burnham, formerly of South Central avenue, Glendale.

Mr. Kimlin visited his brother, Will Kimlin, in Bloomington, Ill., and his sister at Martinsville, Ill., On their return trip the party will divide and stop off at various points to visit different friends.

Mrs. Kimlin is in receipt of a card this morning from Mr. Kimlin, written at the top of the Woolworth building, New York.

MEANEST EMPLOYER IS PARIS HUNT

PARIS, (By Mail)—"Elect the worst employer in Paris and its suburbs." That is the headline appearing daily on the front page of the French communist newspaper, "L'Internationale," inviting its readers to take part in a contest with a reward of 30,000 francs.

The newspaper purports to have organized the contest on humanitarian grounds, in order to better conditions among labor by giving publicity to cases of abuse thus brought to its attention.

VALUE CHANGES TAXABLE, SAYS COLLECTOR

Rex. B. Goodcell Explains New Ruling of His .. Department

The following statement is issued by Collector of Internal Revenue Rex B. Goodcell of the sixth district of California:

Numerous inquiries have been received by the bureau of internal revenue concerning section 202 (c) (1) of the revenue act of 1921 which provides that for the purposes of the income tax no gain or loss shall be recognized when property held for investment, or for productive use in trade or business (not including stock-in-trade or other property held primarily for sale) is exchanged for property of a like kind or use.

Many taxpayers and salesmen of securities are interpreting this to mean that all sales of securities and the immediate purchase of like securities are exchanges resulting in no gain or loss. Such interpretation of the law and regulations is erroneous.

The bureau realizes that in many cases it is difficult to determine whether the transaction is a true exchange or really a sale and reinvestment of the proceeds in other securties. To constitute an exchange within the meaning of section 202 (c) (1) the transaction must be a reciprocal transfer of property for property as distinguished from a transfer of property for a money consideration. In such an exchange neither principal would pay a commission to the other, although if a broker in his capacity, as such, negotiated the exchange for either principal the fact that the broker was paid a commission for his services would not of itself take the transaction out of the classification as an exchange.

If a person owning 100 shares of stock in "A" corporation should instruct a broker to exchange them for shares of stock in "B" corporation, it would be essential in order to bring the transaction within the meaning of the exchange provisions of the revenue act that the person owning the shares of "B" corporation stock should receive the 100 shares of "A" corporation stock and that the person owning the 100 shares of "A" corporation stock should receive the shares of "B" corporation stock. The stock received in exchange should be treated by each party as taking the place of the property exchanged. If, on the other hand, the instructions to the broker are in effect to sell 100 shares of stock in "A" corporation and invest the proceeds in shares of stock in "B" corporation, the transaction cannot be treated as an exchange, but is a sale of "A" corporation stock and a purchase of "B" corporation stock. The element of exchange in this case is lacking as there is no reciprocal transfer of securities between principals unless by mere coincidence.

Where the broker in the transaction, whatever his instructions may be, sells the stock in "A" corporation and then buys the stock in "B" corporation, or buys the stock in "B" corporation and then sells the stock in "A" corporation, there is an interval of time, however short, during which one or both of the customers would have title to no securities whatever. In a true exchange the passing of title to the stock in the "A" corporation and acquisition of title to the stock in the "B" corporation, and vice versa, would be simultaneous as to both parties to the exchange.

In all cases where there is a doubt as to whether the transaction is a sale or exchange, all facts connected with the transaction should be transmitted to the bureau of internal revenue for a ruling in the matter.

PETER FERRY IS REMAKING CITY STREETS

Three Steam Rollers, Forty Mule Teams and Auxiliary Outfits

Peter L. Ferry, probably the largest of the road-building contractors in this part of the country, is quite active in the work of building Glendale roads at this time. Peter has three mammoth steam road rollers on the job at all times, this being augmented in Glendale by an outfit consisting of 40 teams of mules, numerous wagons, scrapers, plows and everything else that is needed in the work of road building.

The resurfacing of Chestnut street from Central to Glendale avenue, was started by Mr. Ferry yesterday. This work will consist of laying a four-inch water main in addition to the resurfacing work. It will take about ten days to complete this work and the job will amount to about $8000, or about $90 for each of the lots facing on this street.

The improvement of Oak street, from Central of Kenilworth, has been under way for the past week and it is expected that within three weeks this improvement will have been finished. This work will cost about $15,000, and will consist of four-inch water pipe and three-inch macadam pavement.

Mr. Ferry has just finished the improving of Adams street, from Palmer to Yale, and of Green street, from Adams to Tyler, both of these pieces of work being done under the one set of specifications, and both streets are located in the Glendale Heights tract. This work cost about $14,000 and consists of an oil macadam roadway on a decomposed granite base, cement sidewalks and curbing.

The high-pressure water pipeline on Brand boulevard, between Windsor and San Fernando boulevard, put in by this contractor, has been completed. This work was done in as short a time as any similar work ever completed in the city. This consists of an eight-inch water main and the cost of the job was about $15,200.

NIMBLE FINGER CLUB IS ENTERTAINED

Mrs. James Lyons entertained last night the Nimble Finger club, auxiliary of the Daughters of Veterans, at her home, 122 West Palmer avenue. During the evening plans were completed for the dinner which the Daughters will serve to the members of N. P. Banks post on August 11 at the home of Mrs. Joseph Griffin, 205 West Acacia. There were 24 ladies present and considerable sewing was finished, several comforter tops being pieced.

At the close of the meeting the hostess, Mrs. Lyons, served a delicious course of home-made pineapple ice cream and wafers, which was greatly enjoyed by all present.
